

HAPPENINGS ON STAGE AND SCREEN

Midweek Announcements of What's Coming to Capital Film Houses in Near Future—Gossip About Plays and Players of Speaking and of Silent Stage.

METROPOLITAN.

Owing to the tremendous popularity of "The Probation Wife," starring Norma Talmadge, the Metropolitan Theater has held over this film for the entire week. From Sunday to Wednesday, first local showings will be made of "An Experimental Marriage," starring Constance Talmadge. The title of the attraction for the last half of next week will be announced later.

RIALTO.

"The Turn in the Road," one of the most appealing camera subjects ever presented upon a Washington screen, will continue the chief feature of the photography bill at Moore's Rialto Theater throughout this week. This film is one in which are combined powerful story, wonderful photography, and perfect acting on the part of a cast that is led by Helen Jerome Eddy, Lloyd Hughes, Pauline Curley and Master Ben Alexander. The week's program is completed by abbreviated picture subjects, a violin solo by Mr. Breckin, and selections from Verdi's "Il Trovatore" by the Rialto orchestra.

The principal attraction at the Rialto next week will be "The Silk-Lined Burglar," the most recent starring vehicle for Priscilla Dean. The bill will be completed by the customary wide variety of subsidiary attractions.

PALACE.

Shirley Mason will be the featured star at Loew's Palace Theater for the last three days of this week, in her latest film vehicle, "The Winning Girl," an adaptation of George Weston's Saturday Evening Post story, "Gem of the Old Rock."

The added attraction of the Palace program for the same period will be the second episode of "Made in America," the great film record of the nation's mobilization, training and preparation for victory.

For the first half of next week, beginning Sunday, Loew's Palace will show a big double bill, consisting of Marjorie Clark in "Three Men and a Girl," and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew in "Once a Mason." For the last half of next week, the Palace program will be featured by Ethel Clayton in "Private Pettigrew's Girl," and the third episode of "Made in America."

CRANDALL'S.

"The World to Live In," featuring Alice Brady, is Thursday's attraction at Crandall's, to be followed on Friday and Saturday by "The Lion and the Mouse," starring Alice Brady. The program for next week is as follows: Sunday and Monday, Marion Davies, in "The Belle of New York"; Tuesday and Wednesday, Rex Beach's drama, "The Brand"; Thursday and Friday, Ethel Clayton, in "Margie Pepper"; Saturday, Carlyle Blackwell, in "Hit or Miss."

SAVOY.

Attractions scheduled at Crandall's Savoy for the rest of the current week include: "The Unveiling Hand," starring Kitty Gordon, tomorrow, "Life's Greatest Problem," starring Mitchell Lewis on Friday, and "Happy Though Married," starring Enid Bennett, on Saturday. Next week's program will be: Sunday and Monday, William S. Hart, in "The Breed of Men"; Tuesday and Wednesday, Alice Brady, in "The Lion and the Mouse"; Thursday, Dorothy Dalton, in "Hard Boiled"; Friday, Montague Love, in "The Hand Invisible"; Saturday, Dorothy Gish, in "Boots."

CONSTANCE BINNEY.

The young and attractive leading woman of "39 East," Rachel Crothers' new comedy appearing at the Garrick Theater. Miss Binney made her first big success in "Oh, Lady, Lady!"

AVENUE GRAND.

The principal attractions listed for screening at Crandall's Avenue Grand for the last three days of this, and all of next week are: Thursday, Charles Ray in "The Girl Dodger"; Friday, Mabel Normand in "Six Hopkins"; Saturday, Alice Brady in "The World to Live In"; Sunday and Monday, Alice Joyce in "The Lion and the Mouse"; Tuesday and Wednesday, William S. Hart in "The Breed of Men"; Thursday, Montague Love in "The Hand Invisible"; Friday, Vivian Martin in "You Never Saw Such a Girl"; Saturday, Enid Bennett in "Happy Though Married."

What's Going on Behind and In Front

Constance Binney, who is featured with Henry Hull in Rachel Crothers' new comedy, "39 East," at the Shubert-Garrick Theater this week, has had one of the most rapid rises to stardom on record.

Miss Binney's first public appearance was in "Saturday to Monday," in which she had a small part. During the short life of this play, F. Ray Comstock and William Elliott happened to see her, and they gave her a part in "Oh, Lady, Lady!"

In this she made such a decided success that she was selected to star in "39 East."

Incidentally, Miss Binney still keeps up her dancing lessons, which she was taking before she went on the stage—then having aspired to the ballet.

The film producers on the Coast are denouncing a bill introduced in the California legislature which provides that no picture which will in any way arouse race hatred can be produced or exhibited. The bill provides that a heavy fine and severe penalty be inflicted upon any producer making such a picture.

A representative of David W. Griffith stated that under such provision producers could not make Government nor Red Cross pictures if the present war was treated from America's standpoint, nor could any historical picture be made.

"Hamlet," if you please, is to be presented on your Walter Hampden is so encouraged over the hearty response given his special performances of the tragedy in New York that he dares to set forth to other large cities.

The itinerary is to include Washington.

"Skinny" and his adventures will soon be on the pictorial market in the form of a series of comedies. The pictures are made from the cartoons of Briggs, and show "Skinny" in all his favorite pastimes. The first "skinny" is "The Days of Real Sport," the second one, "Win a Fellow Needs a Friend," and the third, "Skinny is Surprised." The films are being cut and edited and titled, and the company will announce the releasing plans within a fortnight.

The Carr children, Stephen and Rosemary, so pleased Mr. Briggs and every one concerned with the Briggs Company in their dedication of these cartoon characters, that they have been engaged for a series of fifty-two pictures.

During the last few days the newspapers have carried a dispatch from London conveying the information that the chateau and sugar refineries of the Princess Radziwill had been destroyed by fire. Princess Radziwill is the former beauty of Boston, who nine years ago married Prince Antoine Albert Radziwill. The dispatch concludes with the statement, "Gladya Deacon, sister of Prince Radziwill, is reported to have had more offers of marriage than any other American girl."

The foreign correspondent is both unkind and untruthful. A Bostonian engaged in newspaper work during Gladya Deacon's most prodigious period of romance insists that at the time the record of reported engagements and rumors of marriage easily went to Ethel Barrymore. Miss Barrymore, although Miss Deacon's junior, was greatly in demand at that period, prior to her marriage to Russell Griswold Colt, and really outpointed the Boston debutante in the reportorial "impending marriage" stakes.

At intervals of every two or three months Miss Barrymore was reported engaged to one earl, one duke, one baronet, one multi-millionaire, a raft of common or garden millionaires, one playwright, one author, three actors, one Indian prince, one soldier, one poet, and one cotton leader.

To be exact, the long list of "reported engagements" coupled the name of Miss Barrymore with the Duke of Manchester, Sir Robert Peel, Capt. Harry Graham, the late Richard Harding Davis, Arthur Byron, E. Clarence Jones, Herbert Stone, Prince Ranjitsinhji, the Earl of Ava, Ernest Lawford, Laurence Irving, Gerald du Maurier, Charles D. Westmore, "Freddie" Gebhard, and Robert Walton Goelet.

Martin Johnson, accompanied by his intrepid wife, Mrs. Martin Johnson, will shortly go back to the land of the cannibals for a three years' jaunt. The Johnsons will go to the little-frequented South Sea Islands and subject themselves once more to all the dangers of the cannibalistically inclined savages of the South Sea.

This for art, too. Having been successful with the cannibal pictures, Mr. Johnson is going back to film some more of the same kind.

A new comedy, entitled "Welcome, Stranger," has just been completed by Aaron Hoffman, the author of "Nothing But Lies," and co-author of "Friendly Enemies."

The Lewis and Gordon Producing Company, in conjunction with Mr. Hoffman, will present the play in the near future. This concern has hitherto concerned itself only with vaudeville, and "Welcome, Stranger," will be its first enterprise of the regular stage.

The prolific and newsworthy West furnishes the news that Thomas Meighan is playing opposite Katherine McDonald in her first independent production. Colin Campbell is directing the picture and Forrest Stanley is among those present in the cast. The old Biograph studio in Los Angeles is the scene of action where the picture is being made.
